More Information

Seeley's Bay Harbour provides boaters with access to over 30 kilometres of water between Upper Brewers and Jones Falls locks on the Rideau Canal and provides access to four local lakes.

Rideau Canal Waterway

The Rideau Canal is a visitor's paradise with its many historic lock stations and 202 kilometres (125 miles) of scenic waterway. The Rideau Canal; a National Historic Site of Canada, a Canadian Heritage River and a UNESCO World Heritage Site, consists of a series of beautiful lakes and rivers connected by canals. It stretches from Kingston, at the foot of Lake Ontario, to Ottawa, Canada's capital. Maintained by Canada's Parks service it is arguably the most scenic and historic waterway in North America.

The Rideau is a very easy waterway to boat. It caters to the recreational boater and is easy and fun for novice and expert boaters alike. This page lists a few things that a boater preparing to cruise the Rideau may wish to know:

Charts

To boat the Rideau in confidence and safety, you should have a small craft chart. Two such charts cover the length of the Rideau. Chart 1512 covers Ottawa to Smiths Falls, and Chart 1513 covers Smiths Falls to Kingston. Each chart contains several 1:20,000 sheets which covers all the navigable waterways of the Rideau. These charts show the depth of the water and the location of all navigational markers.
